

Information Sources: ADA Technical Assistance

The Department of Justice, through the Disability Rights Section, has responsibility for coordinating government-wide ADA technical assistance activities. Information and direct technical assistance are available from the agencies listed below. Use the list to select the agency responsible for ADA requirements in your area of interest. Some provide free publications in addition to other information services.

For State and local government programs, privately-operated businesses and services, access to facilities, design standards enforceable under the ADA, and information on tax credits and deductions contact:
